CLAIRE INGERSON

Claire had been a member of our class since seventh grade days. During the summer of 1959, she and her family moved to Shiraz, Iran; so, her senior year was spent attending the American Community School in Beirut, Lebanon.

We missed Claire as she was well liked and active in all activities. We are happy to learn that she will receive her diploma from Addison High School in June, 1960.

VALEDICTORIAN

Joan Bergland

Not finished, just begun. Now is the time when we seniors must ask ourselves: Where do we go from here? As high school graduates, we will be expected to become adults right now and to step into adult roles. Just what these roles are may not be apparent to us at this time. Some of us will be furthering our formal education by entering college this coming September. Others will find jobs and build the foundations of their own homes. How do we decide what to do now? Should we go on to college, join the armed services, or get jobs? The way in which these last questions are answered will certainly have an important impact upon each of our lives.

And what of this adult world that we are stepping into? Will it always be full of strife as it is now, or will there be a lasting world peace? Each one of us has a chance to help the cause of democracy. Our part may be small; it's only logical that all of us can't be the U. S. Presidents and important diplomats and world figures. After all, it's the little wheels who make the big ones turn. Sometimes the little things we do are more influential than we realize. For instance, teaching a child that we can do as we please as long as we don't step on the toes of someone else. Unfortunately, there will always be the Mr. Khrushchevs, the Stalins, and the Castros to try to tear down such democratic teachings. To make this world fit for our children and our grandchildren, let's hope we can make it a better one (world, that is), through some deed.

Although this may be the last time we are considered as "high school kids," what we have gained in our high school experience will stand us in good stead through the rest of our lives. However we can't dwell on the past; the present and the future are what really count - it's right now that we must set our goals and start toward them always keeping them in mind. The future must be dealt with accordingly and must be planned for and anticipated but not feared.

One goal we all want to achieve is that one of happiness. What constitutes this intangible feeling called happiness? To some, money, position, and material gain are the important parts of happiness. But, how long does it last? What happens when the money is gone and someone else has the position? It's then that we realize that home, family and friends are the things that really count.

Tonight we graduating seniors are sharing mixed emotions. We feel the pull of the adult world and the promises of the future on the one hand and the security of home and carefree high school life on the other. We yearn to be independent and yet - we're a little uncertain of our own capabilities. We hate to leave our old friends but want to make new friends. And so it's with a certain sadness and an expectant air that we look forward to receiving that finally realized diploma - our ticket into the adult world.

SALUTATORIAN
Jean Bergland

Here we are, seniors. We've finally made the grade. This has been our goal through the past four years of high school. As freshmen our dream of graduating seemed unreal and very distant. We could not possibly see what effect the four years of high school would have upon us.

Of course we have grown physically, but more important, with the companionship of our classmates and the help of our parents and teachers, we have grown mentally, morally, and spiritually. Just as some of us have grown too big for the desks, we all have been outgrowing our textbooks until now when we go from our cramped quarters in the high school out into the world. These high school years have just been four years of growing up and becoming prepared for what lies ahead. We've been taught history, math, science, home economics, etc. We've learned many things you can't learn from books such as kindness, understanding, and democracy. We've studied hard about lots of things and we've learned a lot. These years have done much to prepare us for what lies ahead whether it be happiness or sadness, wealth or poverty, success or failure.

But we must remember this - in several years our high school achievements will be forgotten. How successful we are will depend on what we are then, not what we were in the past. No matter if we were the football hero or the class brownie, we have to remember that this was in the past and we have the present and the future to look forward to and for which to prepare.

In ten and twenty years we will be the leaders of our community. Some of us may be politicians, doctors, teachers, nurses, lawyers. Who knows, perhaps one of us will be the President of the United States.

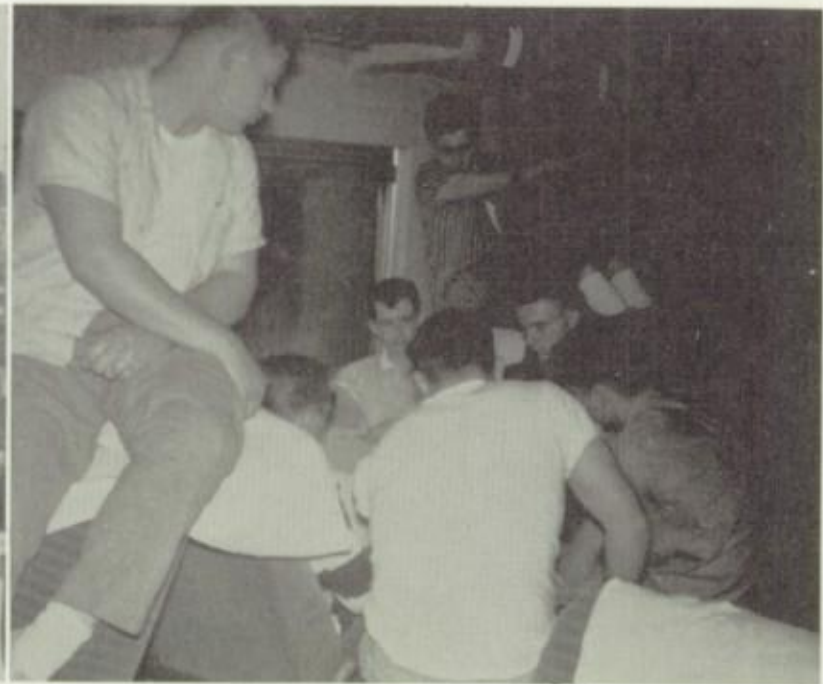

Such honors are not too much for us to anticipate, for during the time we have spent in high school, we have been noted for our ambitious spirit. With the help of this spirit we feel we accomplished a lot as a class and as individuals. This spirit has grown as we have grown and it will continue to grow when we leave, we believe that the class of 1960 spells success!

"Queen Elizabeth" visitors return to Hotel New Yorker.

There might as well have been a "Men Only" sign hung at this poker table.

"Addison Rockettes" perform before an ADMIRING crowd.

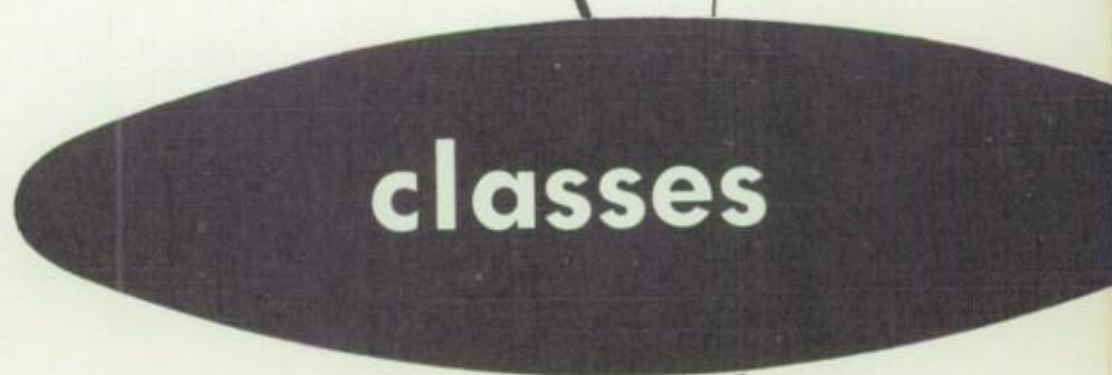

Nelson: "You've worked for this for four years; don't waste it sleeping."

Where's Steve?

The end of a fun-filled, memorable SENIOR TRIP.

Scott Huffman - eighth grader

Roger Culbert - sophomore

All scientific-minded Addisonians deserve a hardy pat on the back for their contributions to a very successful Science Fair. This, the third version of our Science Fair, was definitely bigger and better than versions one and two. It boasted 116 entries and a winner in the big Fair at Ann Arbor. For this honor, our card of congratulations goes to Scott Huffman for his extensive work and fine display of his crystallographic achievements. Good work, Scott!

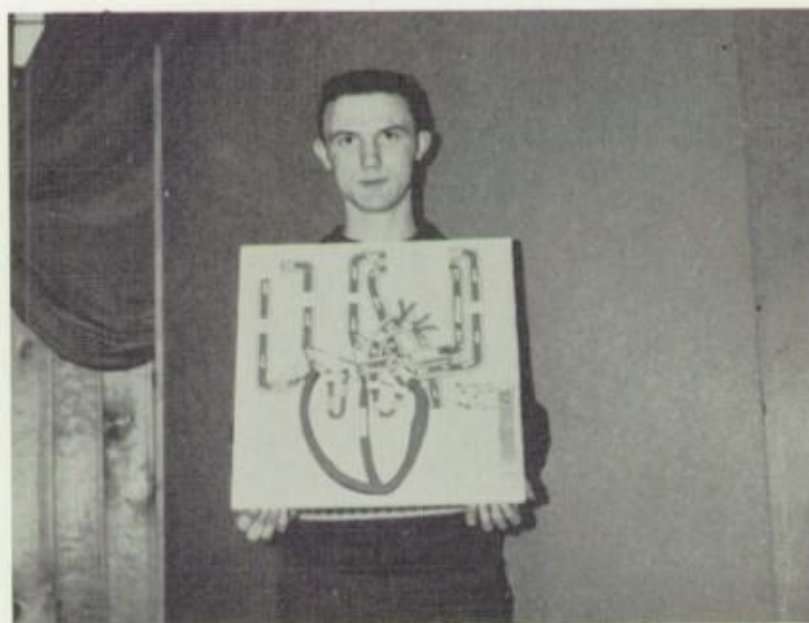

Our Fair was divided into three major grade divisions - Junior High (7th and 8th grades); Junior (9th and 10th); and Senior (11th and 12th).

Our classifications divisions were three in number, also. The Biological, Chemical, and Physical Divisions each boasted many fine entries.

Three cheers for Science Fair '60! But, let's get behind those test tubes, ripple tanks, posters, AND text books to make Science Fair '61 the biggest one ever!

We Learn by Doing

Home Economics is no longer just cooking and sewing. The world is changing at a rapid pace and we must change our curriculum to meet the needs of the student. Their interests, area in which they live, and their ages all need to be considered in the program.

To complete a well-rounded school day, we study, we play and we seek council from our teachers concerning our work.

"NOW IS THE TIME"

Ready, set, type - Mrs. Munk's typing I class.

Mrs. Miller's bookkeeping class.

Business machine operators.

Dictaphone transcription.

Practice makes perfect. A skill requires many hours of practice as hand, eye, and mind must work together. This year 110 students were enrolled in typing.

Advanced typists, also, acquire an acquaintanceship course in filing, duplicating, 10 and full key adding listing machines, rotary calculator, electric typewriter and the dictaphone.

Bookkeeping added another 36 students to the department where students learn the fundamentals of record keeping and related practice.

... TO PREPARE

Busy, boys? - Mechanical drawing.

Happy finger painters in Art II.

Many hands make light work of J-Hop.

Art courses offered are Art I and II and Mechanical Drawing. Art I consists of activities useful in other class work - lettering, scale drawing, poster making and crafts. Art II is planned for students with artistic ability. Mechanical Drawing teaches basic principles and learnings for drafting and engineering. The art classes help with all decorations for school events - dances, parties, and banquets.

Classes and organizations appreciate the help and the cooperation of the Art Department.

The senior band, composed of students in grades eight, nine, ten and eleven, had a busy year performing both at home and away. The band prepared marching shows for all six home football games besides the Tecumseh Marching Festival and the University of Michigan Band Day. Many students entered the Solo and Ensemble Festival and the entire band competed in the District Band Festival. Spring found the band preparing for the All-County Band Festival and our own annual Spring Concert. To close the year, the band marched in the Memorial Day Parade and participated in the graduation program.

The chorus gave a joint Spring Concert with the band and sang for both baccalaureate and graduation.

An Active Council Is a Successful Council

The main reasons a Student Council exists are to develop within students regard for the regulations necessary to a well-ordered democracy; provide an organization through which students opinions, interests, and desires may be conveyed to the staff of the school; promote school loyalty and spirit; encourage high standards of scholarship; and encourage potential leaders to accept responsibility.

The Council's accomplishments, this year, have been to handle the annual homecoming events; begin construction of a bulletin board in front of the school; buy the new members of the Honor Society membership pins, and provide gold tassels for the graduating members; sponsor a Clean-up Day for school grounds; sponsor the student picture sales; carry on free noon dances in the gym during the winter months; contact students to usher at the parent-teacher conferences; sell programs at football and basketball games; provide funds for representatives from the yearbook and newspaper staffs to attend a summer workshop at the University of Michigan; and most important, drew up the first constitution of the Addison Student Council.

It Takes Work to Keep Our Library in Order

Books, people, and ideas comprise the triad known as the school library. The students at Addison have been encouraged to read a total yearly circulation of three thousand books which was exclusive of reference materials. In order to make more books more readily available for a greater number of students, the Board of Education saw its way clear to allow three hundred dollars to be spent this year for new books with an equal amount expended also, on the yearly magazine subscriptions for the faculty and students.

Through books the students retain the record of man's progress and his means of departure for the future. Thus the library must provide the cultural resources for each generation to come, or it becomes merely an archaic room lined with obsolete books.

Addison finished a fine football season with a 5-3 record. The last game, which was cancelled, with Camden-Frontier, because of wet ground, could have set a school record had the Panthers won. The best record in the history of the school is a 5-2-2, which was set by the 1958 team.

HOMECOMING 1959

Days of planning and preparation went into the making of the homecoming floats. Numb fingers picked at flowers and cold feet stamped on colder garage and barn floors for hours on end.

Addison High School's 1959 Homecoming Parade was extra special. The floats were exceptionally well done and the weather man cooperated by providing a bright, perfect day.

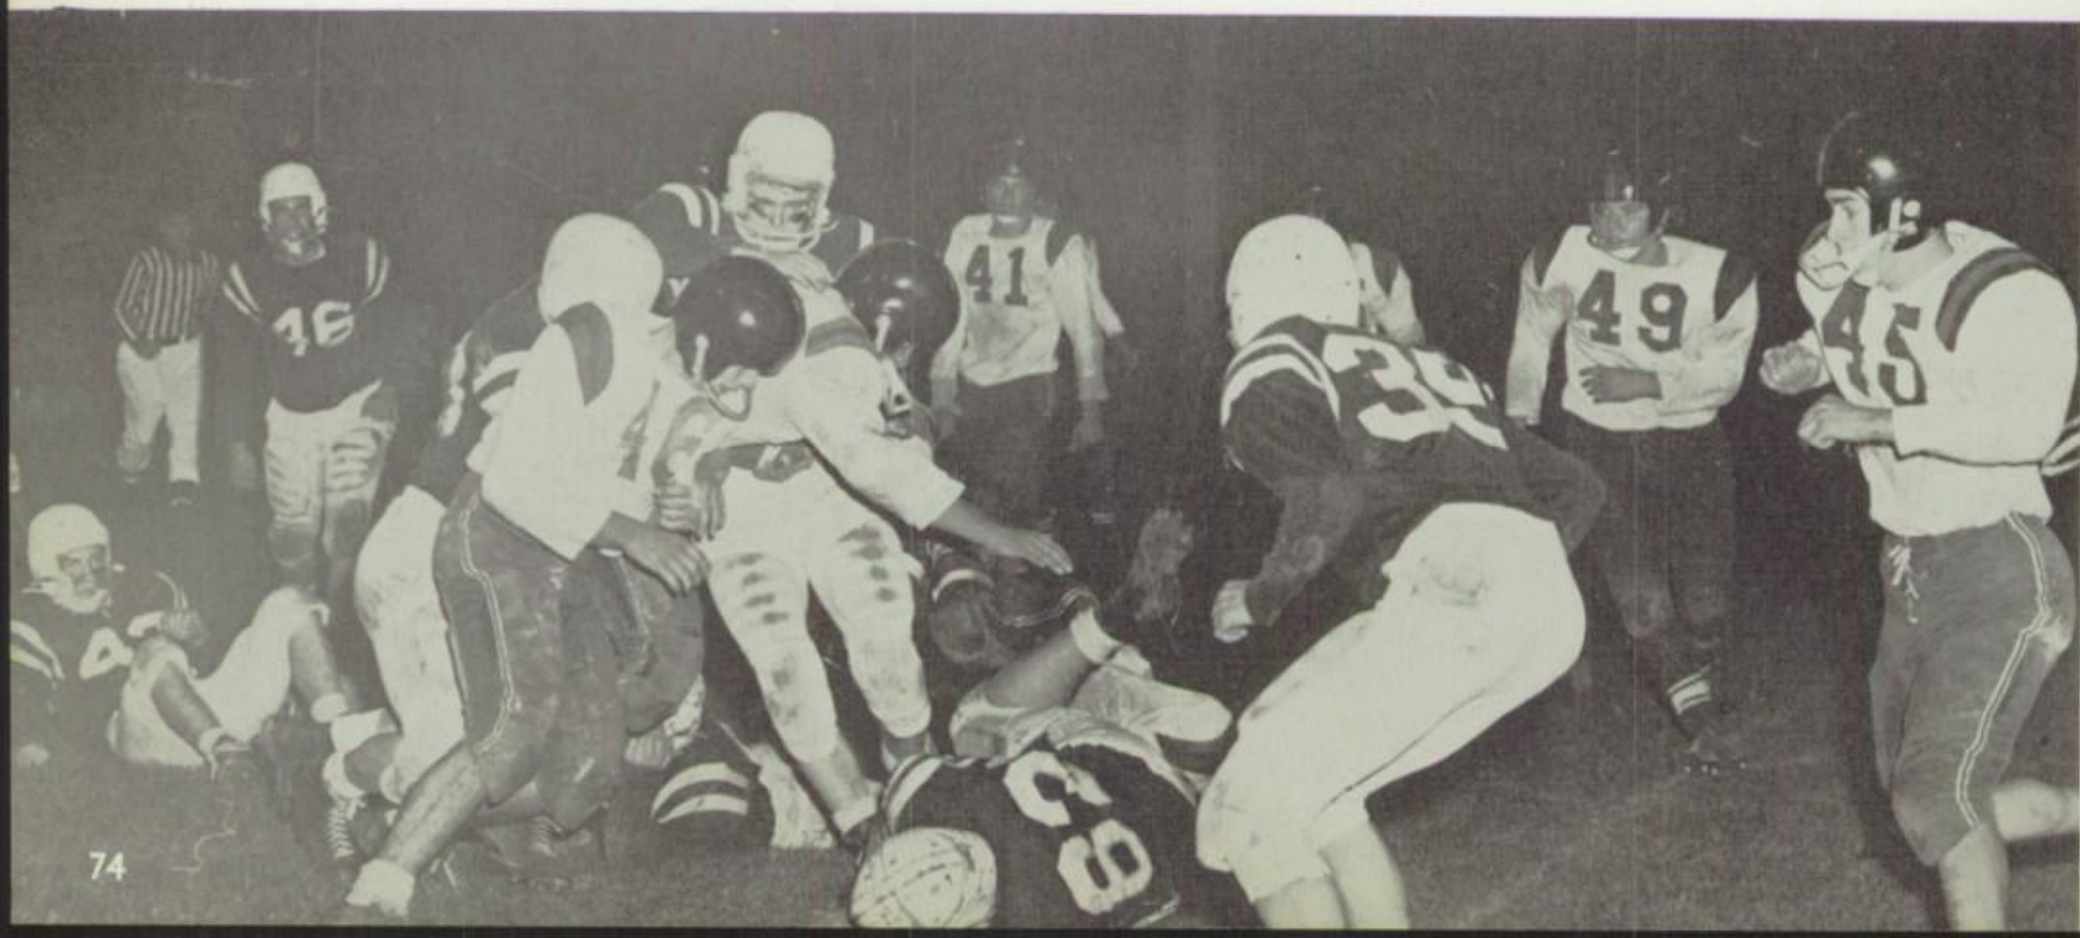

The sophomore float placed first and won the twenty-five dollar prize given by the Student Council. This float consisted of red and black paper flowers accented with white ones. It depicted a large leaping panther on a football field. It's theme was "Rose Bowl Bound."

At the Halftime parade, the winning float was announced and the homecoming queen was presented with roses.

Despite the enthusiastic support shown by the Addison fans, the Panthers were defeated by Morenci in the last quarter making the final score 19-15.

Marjorie Lee, the junior class candidate, was crowned Addison's Homecoming Queen by the football co-captains Charles Ingerson and Douglas Ladd.

A New High School . . .

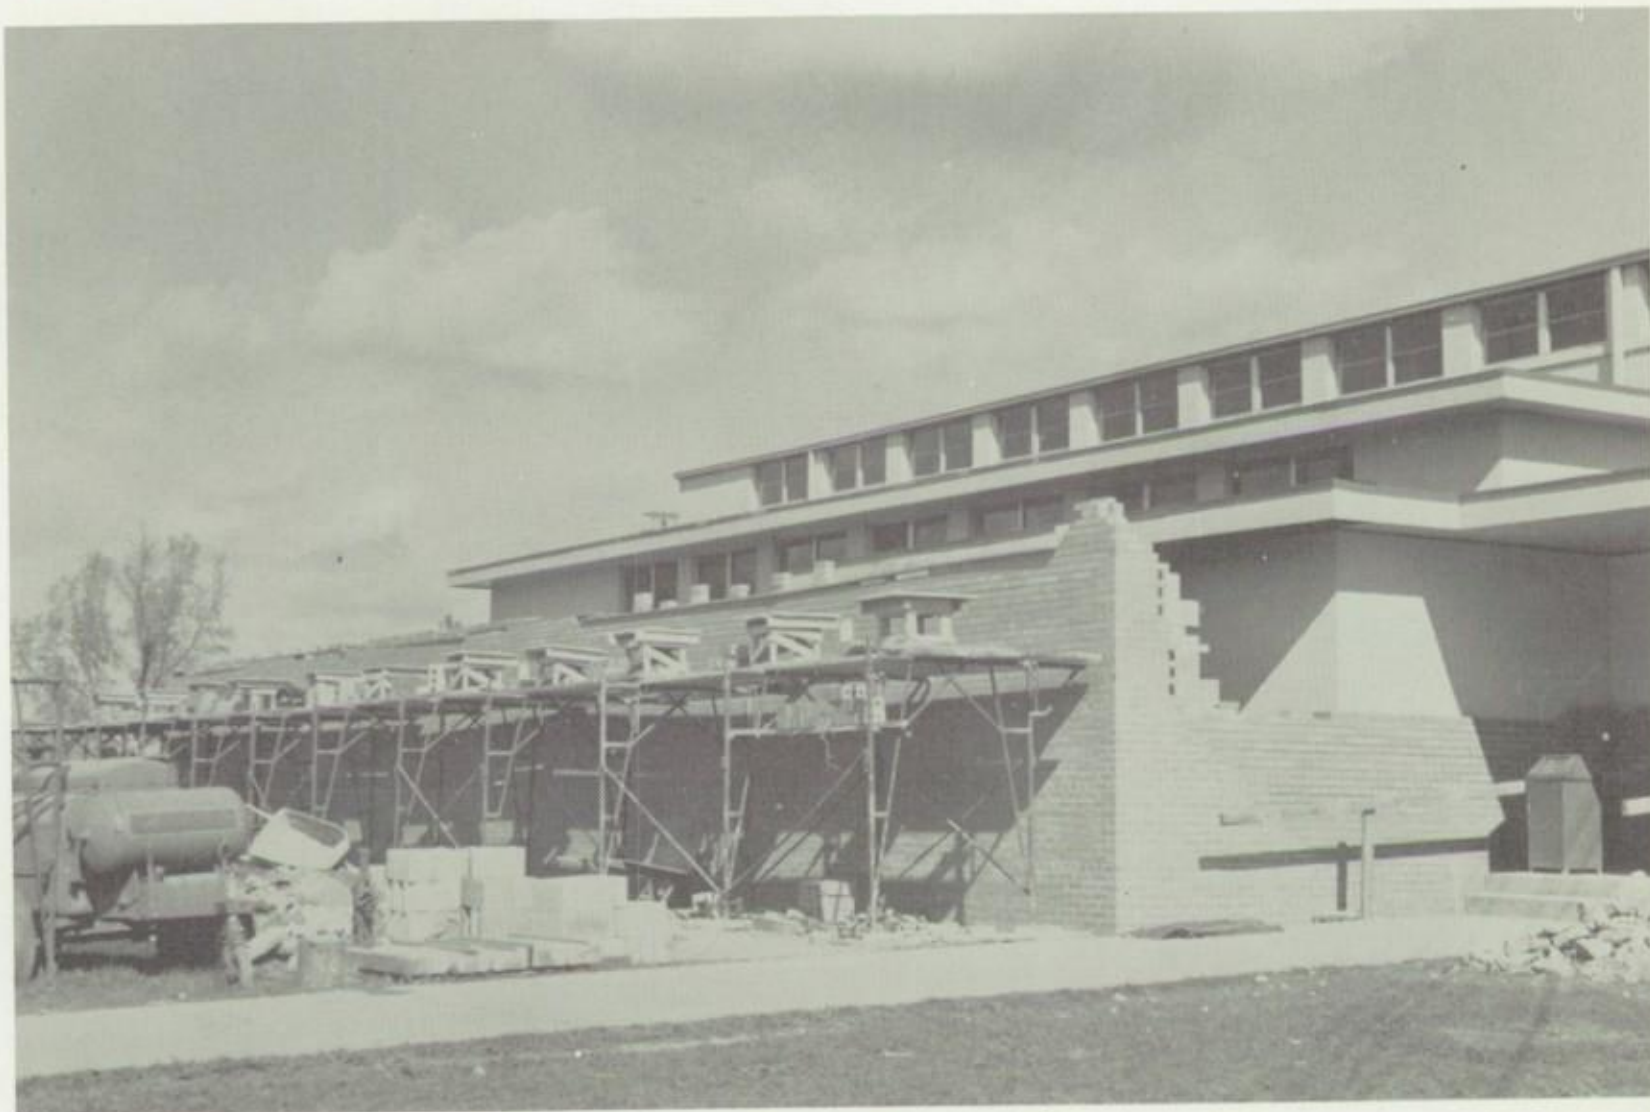

Ground is Broken

Mortar is poured and brick is laid

... In the Making

Day by Day progress is made

On February 3, 1959, the voters of the Addison Community Schools passed by a large margin a $700,000 bond issue to construct and equip a new high school building and to renovate the present high school and bus buildings.

The new senior high school will be a one-story fire-resistant brick veneer building. It will provide three Social Science rooms, three English rooms, two math rooms, two science rooms, two commercial rooms, one home economics room, one arts and crafts room, one room for shop, one Agriculture room with Lab, one mechanical drawing room, one band room, one choral room and one journalism room, library, combination study hall, community center and cafeteria, audio visual room, clinic, kitchen, guidance room, storage rooms, work rooms and offices. There will also be new locker room for the girls. This building will cover approximately 49,000 square feet. It will be ready for use in the fall of 1960.

Here's to old Addison,
Of all the others she is the one.
We pledge our true allegiance to her name -
Let's cheer for victory for Addison.
Fight till the goal is won,
We're for you all in one,
Old Addison! RAH! RAH! RAH!
